

SPACE LIABILITY

Insurance for the Unique Risks of Space

If it flies, USAIG covers it. That includes coverage beyond our atmosphere. USAIG, the aviation and aerospace insurance leader, provides coverage for space liability from launch to return – one of a select few carriers to do so. Our Special Risks Underwriting Team has extensive experience in evaluating the unique and innovative risks that this new frontier of commercial aerospace presents.

Policies can be written to cover the mission before, during and after its entry into space. Our specialists have assessed and written necessary coverage for launch liability in compliance with FAA launch licensing requirements, contingent launch liability, spacecraft liability and on-orbit and re-entry liability. We cover risks including launch service providers, and satellite and space product manufacturers among many others.

Our expert underwriters have the highly technical aerospace knowledge required to work closely with you to evaluate your individual exposure. Our proven approach looks at the specific risks of each company. Then our team tailors coverage to answer specific challenges in the air and in space.
