

At CAIG, We Like the Sound of Yes

As Canada's dedicated aviation insurance specialists, if it flies or supports something that flies—large or small—we probably insure it with policies tailored to each unique operation. Whether for private, corporate or commercial aircraft operations, or for those who manufacture, maintain or repair aviation or aerospace products or are engaged in an aviation-related business: We have or can create the perfect mix of coverages.

But the right policy is just the beginning. Our customers return year after year, decade after decade, even generation after generation, because we deliver exceptional claims service. Prompt. Professional. Fair. If your loss is covered – and we always look for ways to say "Yes," rather than excuses to say "No" – we will act quickly and efficiently to help restore you to full operation. Our financial structure – we are an insurance pool composed of individually sound member companies – provides a rock-solid foundation delivering unparalleled strength and stability, generating the capacity needed to properly insure any size aviation or aerospace operation.

Safeguarding Canadian Skies Since 1937

Nine Decades of Unrivaled Aerospace Risk Management, Built for the True North

Founded in 1937 as aviation expanded across the country, the Canadian Aircraft Insurance Group (CAIG) was established to meet a vital need for specialized risk coverage. Modeled after the proven structure and legacy of the United States Aircraft Insurance Group (USAIG), CAIG opened its doors in Montreal under the leadership of Chairman David C. Beebe – a USAIG co-founder and WWI pilot – and President John H. "Tuddy" Tudhope, Squadron Leader – a decorated WWI flying ace and pioneer in Canadian civil aviation.

Our launch coincided with a major turning point for Canadian airspace, highlighted by the birth of national commercial air transport. Operating complex aircraft over vast and rugged geography created heavy financial risks that local insurers could not handle alone. By sharing these large exposures across multiple stable financial backers, we gave operators the security needed to operate with absolute confidence and scale commercial flights to remote areas. It is this commitment to comprehensive protection and expert underwriting that carries CAIG forward as we approach our 90th year.

Elevating Safety

We offer a full range of programs designed to help aviation operations – regardless of size – stay at safety's leading edge. Our dedicated safety expert is available to help fine-tune your safety programs.

Performance Vector - One of the industry's best safety training programs and delivers a broad range of valuable, forward-looking training with insights, strategies and specific practical steps to minimize operational error and further enhance your safety culture.

Performance Vector PLUS – Our individual good experience program returns a significant percentage of premium to operators who avoid losses while meeting meaningful safety standards.

Performance Vector Unmanned - This evolving set of resources and services boosts the safety and compliance of CAIG-insured UAS operators refreshing with each policy renewal.

Driven by Aviation. Defined by Leadership

Our legacy is rooted in the skies. Founded on firsthand flight experience and pioneering vision, CAIG has always been dedicated to the aviation industry. Our founders – WWI pilots and civil aviation pioneers David C. Beebe and John H. "Tuddy" Tudhope – established CAIG to meet a vital need for specialized aviation risk coverage across Canada. Today, we honor that heritage as a global leader in aviation insurance, providing industry-leading coverage and unmatched service to support the global aviation community.
